FROM THE

SALEM PERSPECTIVE

STRONG WOMEN STRONG MINDS

FROM FRONT CAMPUS TO THE LOWER PLEASURE GROUNDS, SALEM COLLEGE AFFORDS WOMEN A CHANCE TO STRENGTHEN THEIR FOOTHOLD WITHIN A SHARED COMMUNITY. THE SALEM PERSPECTIVE IS A COLLECTION OF MANY DIFFERENT THOUGHTS, WISHES, DREAMS AND OPINIONS. THE ABILITY FOR ALL OF US TO CO-EXIST WITHIN THE SAME SPACE WITH SO MANY DIFFERENT PERSPECTIVES PROVIDES A THRIVING ATMOSPHERE IN WHICH ACADEMIA FLOURISHES.

Orientation 2008

"I served as Orientation Chair this year because I wanted to welcome my Sister class to Salem. This gave me a great opportunity to learn about the class of 2012 and scout out lil sis' at the same time! I enjoyed getting to move in early and spend the week of training becoming closer with the Orientation Team. I didn't exactly love hauling everyone's stuff up to their rooms but it was worth it to welcome the incoming first year class to Salem!"

Amber Lankford, junior

SIGN HERE. On move in day first year, Alexis McClellan, signs in in order to receive her room key. Meanwhile, the Orientation Crew is busily moving her belongings into her room. It usually only takes the Orientation leaders about ten minutes to get each new student moved in. Calhoun Photo.

Refocused on Academics

Opening Convocation aids students in refocusing on the meaning of another year in their education. The entire community of Salem College gathered together in Hanes Auditorium for the evening festivities of August twenty sixth.

According to tradition, seniors marked their last participation in Opening Convocation by wearing outrageous footwear. Stylistic choices made this year included clown shoes, high heels with the markings of Salem bricks and special blinking contraptions. Senior Daphne Nichols did not find time to make shoes for opening convocation but "liked the idea of going barefoot" and still managed to make a statement.

Even though the seniors added their fun to the occasion, Opening Convocation formally redirects students to the academic year. Dr. Gary Ljunquist, (pictured at right) in his first ever address to the student body, undertook what he claimed to be the "impossible task" of reminding students of the importance of academics. For him, impossibility did not originate in his lack of ideas or inability to communicate with his audience. Rather the weight of what he considered to be the honor of speaking made it an impossibility. He hoped in directing his message directly to the students to transfer the message that academics is "not some dusty old thing in a book," but "a living breathing concept."

The Salem community left Opening Convocation with the heart to invigorate their academic studies with new breaths of life.

NCAA Celebration

"Achieving NCAA status has finally given all the athletes a chance to succeed in comparison to other schools in awards. It feels like it is official, as in we have something to play for now since we can go tournament conferences. My experience as an athlete at Salem has helped me further my development. I have optimism for this program."

SALEM SISTERHOOD

By: Lauren Redman

"From the outside looking in, you could never understand it. From the inside looking out, we could never explain it."

What is it? Sisterhood. Ask any Salem lady from throughout the years and she could easily tell you the importance of sisterhood at Salem. Even after graduation, our sisterhood is what keeps us close, ignoring distance and the time spent apart. At the core of that sisterhood is Big Sister Little Sister. The Big Sis Little Sis ceremony is not only the time for big sisters to officially "claim" their little sisters, but for the two classes to claim each other and form a bond that should not be underestimated.

This year's Big Sis Little Sis ceremony had the new big sister class decorating the Club Dining Room with blue and yellow balloons and placing coasters with the Salem daisy and their little sister's name on them around the room. When the new little sister class entered the room, they had to search to find their coaster and reveal their big sister's name on the back. After the ceremony, the Refectory was filled with laughter and happiness as the new "sisters" enjoyed their first official dinner together.

Fall Fest: Broadway Musicals

6. THE SENIOR PARADE. Teriyon Williams enjoys her part in the excellent senior parade. The seniors had serious class participation for this year's Fall Fest. Calhoun Photo

8. ENTERTAINMENT. Shikshya Shrestha bounces down the inflatable slide provided by the seniors after the parade. The carnival of sorts that emerged from the practice fields fit very well with their theme. Calhoun Photo

10. FIRST YEARS AND FALL FEST. Alex Carreiro, Yentilyn Harmon, and Sara Maher along with other first years made a valiant attempt at their first Fall Fest. Calhoun Photo

The Order of the Scorpion

"The Order of the Scorpion continually works to foster the ideals and true spirit of Salem in order to serve the college in many ways with no reward or recognition. Most of their projects are small and intangible, but impact the Salem community in an immense way. The fourteen members of this order are of junior and senior class status. Each year the senior members reveal themselves at Commencement. The seniors paint their caps with a silver Scorpion signifying their membership of this special and unique order in Salem's history."

OBAMA WINS

BY: DAZELL DEMMING

Now that the presidency of Barack Obama has settled in, it is time to take an important look at what the election of Barack Obama as the 44th President of the United States means for America. During Election Night, I could not help but to think about the long and painful journey that has brought us to this moment. I thought of the horrors of the Middle Passage, the years of lynching, Rosa Parks' refusal to move, Freedom Rides, Bloody Sunday, Birmingham and countless other hardships that African-Americans have endured in this country. Countless of Americans have died so that this presidency could be possible; this is why the presidential candidacy and victory of Barack Obama is so historic. This victory tells every America and those throughout the world, that America's destiny is in our hands. As shareholders in this democracy, we all have profited from a presidential election that has elated, encouraged, and engaged millions of Americans. Young, old, new, and non-voters, all voted for this epic change; now is the time to march into tomorrow. People were awake and motivated to realize the power of "we." We did it, and we have to stay involved for this victory to mean what it should. This victory is only the reflection of a people linked, moving towards a better tomorrow. Our country moves forward only when we move beyond pettiness to power. Yes we can! Yes we did! Yes we will!

MARCH. During the Primaries in May, Salem students supported another march to early vote downtown. This brought other students from neighboring schools. Demming Photo.

COLLABORATION. On October 16th, 2008, the first ever early voting occurred for North Carolina. Salem students marched to the Forsyth County Board of Elections in downtown Winston. This was a collaborative effort with Wake Forest University, Winston Salem State, School of the Arts and local high schools. Demming Photo.

celebrate DIVERSITY

BY DAZELL DEMMING

At Salem College, there has recently been a movement to celebrate diversity. What does it mean to celebrate diversity? Is this the sort of diversity where you put on parties, talk in town hall meetings, or listen to music? Or is it more learning about other cultures, backgrounds, and interests? Salem College throughout my four years has implemented various diverse activities. The only issue is that many students do not participate in these events.

There is an underlying experience at Salem in which the students tend to live in a bubble, forgetting that there is a world beyond the Pit and Salem Square. Many students have expressed their disappointment in how the lack of diverse interaction among the students creates tension many deem unnecessary.

Sophomore, Destiney Linker expressed that "diversity is a word just thrown around at Salem." She continues, "Diversity is not something that will be achieved through campus-sponsored programs, but something which students themselves have to realize—either through interaction with people from other cultures, through groundbreaking classes, or through study abroad and other opportunities."

Sophomore Zinobia Bennefield views Salem College as a campus that bursts with culture but, "Salem lacks a mixture in faculty and staff." She states that there are plenty of "minorities" to clean and cook for us, but why aren't they as represented in the faculty and staff. Zinobia goes on to express that "the institutions' limited ability to deal with this melting pot clearly shows in its inability to keep this diversity."

First year Maenylie Reed believes that it is up to the individual to insert themselves within the diverse range of culture at Salem College. Maenylie acknowledges that she is staying at Salem to "make Salem truly diverse."

There needs to be more openness among the students to enjoy the diversity that Salem offers. Destiney states it best, "Salem, speak up. Salem, forget petty boundaries, Salem, come together."

DEDICATION

This yearbook is dedicated to

Nikki Richardson

The award this year provides possibly even more merit for the recipient as the award was decided by a vote from the senior class. Seniors lauded her sweet, hardworking soul. Her co-workers claim there is no better co-worker. They also claim that her name may be found in the dictionary next to the word work.

Ms. Richardson joined the registrar's office at Salem College in 1991. She is a native of Florida where she earned a Bachelor of Arts degree from Florida Southern College. She has two sons and two twin, curly-haired, seven year old granddaughters.

SENIOR ADS

Sellen P. Aroesty & Ca Shana L. Hamler

To us being sisters is all about packing up all our shit and heading out on the weekends. Drunken fights, matching tattoos, random dudes and partying night after night, you gotta love this life. We don't tell freshmen, "You only live once and when you live like us once is enough," for no reason, that's our motto. And girls just want to have fun is more than our mantra. It's cardinal rule number one; it's our way of life. So every day we thank Cindy for that advice. Four years ago the perfect storm was created and we're still thanking God he made it. We have had our fair share of ups and downs. People wouldn't believe we had straight up brawls and falling outs, but when all is said and done, we're not ready for this storm to clear. Hell, we're thinking about failing and staying one more year.

Kathy Ann Canafax

Time to say goodbye to Salem! Thanks for four wonderful years,
Kathy & Family

Kayla Nicole Vaden

From the time you were born you have always been a bright light in our eyes. It is hard to believe that the time has come for you to embark upon your future dreams of being a teacher. What a wonderful teacher you will be. May all your hopes and dreams come true. We are so very proud of you.

Love Mom, Dad and Jonathan

Emily Ball

Emily,

We are all so proud of you and what you have accomplished. You are now beginning a new phase in your life and we know you will continue to develop and mature into the person God plans for you to be. Our best wishes and prayers go with you for a wonderful future.

Congratulations!
Memaw & Daddy

Emily,

You have been our shining star since the day you were born. You are so very special. We are so very proud of you and all that you have accomplished in these 20 years. We wish you the very best - good health, happiness and all that you wish for.

We love you,
Papa & Gan

Emily,

I love you and you are the best daughter anyone could have. Your accomplishments have been hard earned and I wish the best for your future! You deserve it!

Love,
Mom
